We take the protection of your privacy and confidentiality seriously. We understand that all visitors to our website are entitled to know that their personal data will not be used for any purpose unintended by them and will not accidentally fall into the hands of a third party. We do not sell your data to third parties.

Our principle guidelines are simple, and we will be clear about the data we collect and why.

This Policy sets out the conditions under which we may process any information that we collect from you, or that you provide to us. It covers information that could identify you (“personal information”) and information that could not. In the context of the law and this notice, “process” means collect, store, transfer, use or otherwise act on information.

We hope the sections below will answer any questions you have but, if not, please do get in touch with us.

The information we collect about you

We collect information about you in a number of ways:

Directly Provided Data

“Directly provided data” means when you visit our website, register with us, request quotations for work or place an order for products or services, you are providing data by filling in text boxes, clicking buttons and sending emails.

When you contact us generally, whether by telephone or by e-mail, we collect the data you have given to us in order to reply with the information you need.

When you give any information to us it may require a direct action from you and, as such, is deemed to be “directly provided data”.

User Authorised Data

“User authorised data” is when you give us permission to obtain your data from other businesses. It is unlikely we will ever request this but in the interests of GDPR compliance:

Depending on your settings or the privacy policies for other online services, you may give us permission to obtain information from your account with those other services.

For example, if another website jointly runs a promotion or competition with us, they will send us a list of the entrants who opted to receive our email newsletter as part of their entry. The information we obtain from such third parties does depend on your settings for that service or their privacy policies, so you should always regularly check what those are.

However, we will only arrange such joint promotions if it is made clear how the data will be shared with us.

This applies where you are asked if you would like to agree to receive/sign up for information on Facebook /Twitter/LinkedIn and other social media platform; making an appointment to visit our offices or factory. This applies generally when you use any social media platform or forum, including general conversations via telephone or by email.

“System collected data” is when our systems, or those of companies we engage with, collect information or data as you use our website or other services.

Whenever you use a website, or read email, there is certain information that gets created and recorded automatically by the system. For example:

Some of the cookies we use are directly associated with your R K Graphics limited account (relating to things like the email address you gave us), and other cookies are not. There are more details on our cookie usage below.

(b) In addition, the type of device you’re using to access www.rkgraphics.co.uk and the settings on that device may provide us with information about your device, including what type of device it is, what specific device you have, what operating system you’re using, what your device settings are, and why a crash has happened. For example, different types of information are available depending on whether you’re using a Mac or a PC, an iPhone or an Android phone. Your device manufacturer or operating system provider will have more details about what information your device makes available to us.
